ETERNAL VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF LIBERTY. INDIANAPOLIS, JUNE 11, 1845.

For Congress, Fifth District. WILLIAM W. WICK.

PROCLAMATION.

Three Hundred Dollars Reward. By virtue of the authority in me vested by the laws of Indiana, I, JAMES WHITCOME, Governor of said State, do hereby offer a reward of three hundred dollars for the apprehension and safe delivery in the jail of Jefferson county, in said State, of JAMES McMILLEN, who stands charged with having, on the night of the 29th of May, of the present year, under circumstances of great aggravation, deliberately murdered John Lichlighter, in said county.

of age, short, thick set, rather stoop-shouldered, dark hair, blue eyes, round face, fair complexion, well looking, an Irishman by birth, and formerly a barkeeper in Holmes' Hotel, Cincinnati.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand at Indianapolis, this 9.h day of June, 1845. JAS. WHITCOMB.

Relief Laws --- The late Decision. A friend has suggested to us that our notice of the recent decision of the Circuit Court of the United States at this place on the subject of our relief laws, was not sufficiently definite as to the point decided by the court, which was, as we learn, that a note made in Ohio, to be there paid, under a two-thirds appraisement law, and brought to the State of Indiana to be in force at the date of the note; thereby deciding that the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States could not be carried so far as to introduce, and enforce, the remedial laws of a foreign State or government in this State. The point here decided is one that we have not understood had before received the gon is theirs, in the face of the clear title to the counconsideration of the court, and it is not plainly seen how the decision of the point is to be reconciled with the broad principles laid down by the Supreme Court in the Illinois case, that the remedial laws in force be executed, formed a part of the contract, as much
